NSW School Student Transport Scheme
Appeals Panel Application Form

The School Student Transport Scheme (SSTS) Appeals Panel is an independent body comprised of representatives from the Department of Education and Communities and parent groups.

The panel independently reviews Transport for NSW's decisions on SSTS eligibility for cases where special circumstances may apply. These relate to situations where a family experiences substantial issues in transporting a child who has been deemed ineligible for SSTS travel.

The panel does not review decisions relating to:

- the mode of transport or the route approved for eligible students
- the application of the radial distance test by the school or transport operator
- the walking distance test conducted by Transport for NSW

SSTS eligibility criteria

To be eligible for subsidised travel students must meet one of the following criteria:

Primary students (Years 3-6)

- must reside 1.6 kilometres or more radial distance from the school attended, or
- need to walk 2.3 kilometres or more by the most practicable direct route to the nearest physical entry of the school

Secondary students (Years 7-12)

- must reside 2.0 kilometres or more radial distance from the school attended, or
- need to walk 2.9 kilometres or more by the most practicable direct route to the nearest physical entry of the school

Under SSTS, subsidised travel is only available between a student's home address and the school attended.
